

ACAD Talk is coming!

For those of you who don't know what ACAD Talk is, it is a school public speech event like TED Talk. Students write their original speech, rehearse, and give a talk.

Traditionally, the final speech is held in-person in the presentation hall, but this year, it will be held outdoors with tech support or online (just in case). And the date will be around mid-April, so you still have almost two months to prepare. During the process, ACAD Talk team will help you come up with your topic, assist writing, arrange rehearsal, and support whatever you need to do with your speech. For the at-home learners, you also have the same opportunity to participate with a slightly different format.

Each of you has a talented and interesting soul with crazy ideas. No matter how weird your idea might sound, we'd love to hear it. You can see this as an opportunity to reveal a different side of yourself, to speak up for your community, to introduce your passion, anything! Especially with fresh experiences of 2020, we believe you have a lot to tell. The most important thing is that we want to let you know you're worth hearing, and our ears are ready to hear your beautiful voice!
